

Muddy Boots Farms is a family run business in rural North Carolina. The business is owned and operated by Kent & Amy Lowder and their three children, along with Roger & Ginger Lowder. They come from many generations of farmers and are devoted to carrying on the tradition of providing healthy alternatives to the world of fast food and mass produced commercialized products laden with chemicals and artificial additives. They own and operate greenhouses year-round and plant seasonal crops as well. "We rely on hard work and answered prayers to bring our fresh and natural earth derived products to you."

www.muddybootsfarms.com

